CIS signs a strategic partnership with the Turkish Group DORÇE

CIS, a provider of integrated services for the management of remote offshore and onshore sites, announces the signature of a partnership with DORÇE, a manufacturer of modular buildings present in over 60 countries. This agreement will allow CIS and DORÇE to position themselves upstream on major projects with an integrated turnkey offer, including engineering, construction, and management of bases in remote or harsh environment for international clients operating in the energy, mining, construction, and military sectors.

DORÇE, a global player specializing in the construction of customized modular buildings

DORÇE Prefabricated Buildings and Construction is a historical player and one of the world leaders in the Modular Construction sector. The Group based in Ankara (Turkey) has more than 40 years of experience and a production facility for prefabricated steel structures that enables it to provide its customers with customized solutions in compliance with local and international quality standards.

As an EPC (Engineering, Procurement & Construction) contractor, DORÇE is responsible for the entire construction project, including engineering, procurement, production, logistics, assembly, as well as any infrastructure and superstructure works, until commissioning.

A win-win partnership between a manufacturer and a remote site service provider operating in complementary geographical areas

The CIS Group and the DORÇE Group are two leading international players serving private and public customers in the energy, mining, construction, and armed forces sectors. As a service provider, CIS has developed a complete range of solutions dedicated to the management of sites located in difficult or isolated environments, ranging from several hundred to several tens of thousands of people.

Yannick Morillon, CEO of CIS, said: "The agreement we have just finalized with the DORÇE Group is a strategic agreement for two reasons. It strengthens our value proposition with an integrated solution that is increasingly adapted to the specific needs of our customers and it will enable us to position ourselves on major projects located in geographical areas where CIS is not yet present and where the DORÇE group has strong experience."
